

Patrick H. Dallet

Pat Dallet spent his professional career working to maintain the highest standards in education, including a commitment to adult education and vocational services. After working in Kentucky and the Virgin Islands, Pat moved his family to Tallahassee in 1973, and began a long career analyzing, planning and implementing the statewide programs and policies relating to all levels of education. Pat worked with the Senate Education Committee, the Department of Education and the Postsecondary Education Planning Commission in areas including student financial assistance, community instructional services, postsecondary education access for students with disabilities, vocational education, education and aging, and global education.

Through the years Pat has served his community through his work with the FSU College of Education Alumni Association, the Tallahassee Kiwanis Club, the Equal Access/Equal Opportunity Committee at DOE and the College Reach-Our Program, State Advisory Committee, among others. He has been a Roman Catholic Deacon since 2009.

In 2010 Pat joined the TCC Foundation Board and is currently serving as President. Fellow Board members noted in his nomination “Pat’s dedication to maintaining the highest standards for education, and his natural ability to work with everyone from volunteers to the legislature in refining and furthering the very best we can offer to students is inspirational.”
