

Darryl W. Hall

Born and raised in Jefferson County, Darryl Hall spent four years in the Army before enrolling at TCC in the summer of 1987. He later earned an Associate in Arts degree, an Associate in Science degree in Emergency Medical Services Technology, and an Associate in Science degree in Nursing from the college.

To say that Darryl hit the ground running once he entered the world of healthcare is an understatement. He spent seven months working for Calhoun County Emergency Medical Services before returning to Tallahassee to work as a paramedic at Tallahassee Memorial Healthcare.

Darryl's nursing degree afforded him the opportunity to work in the ER, ICU, Long-term care, Rehabilitation, and Outpatient; he even spent seven and a half years as a flight nurse for Life Flight. Darryl also spent a few years helping to shape young minds in the healthcare field as an Adjunct Professor with TCC, the college that he loves and had given so much to him.

Darryl turned to the administrative side of healthcare by joining Leon County Emergency Medical Services—a fairly new department that got its start in late 2003. Darryl began as a field operations supervisor and continued to move up the ranks, serving as the Quality Improvement and Education manager. He was appointed deputy chief of operations for Leon County EMS in July of 2015 and continues to serve in that post.
